DID YOU KNOW...?

There are 12.3 million adults and children in forced and bonded labor and forced prostitution around the world.

Human trafficking became a crime in the United States in 2000 with the passage of the Trafficking Victims Protection Act (TVPA), and in 2005 in California with the passage of the CA TVPA.

Human trafficking of women, men, and children occurs throughout the world—in other countries, in the U.S., in San Francisco.

Human trafficking is one of the fastest growing and most profitable criminal activities in the world, along with the drug and guns trade.

HUMAN TRAFFICKING

“THE ACQUISITION OF PEOPLE BY IMPROPER MEANS SUCH AS FORCE, FRAUD, OR DECEPTION, WITH THE AIM OF EXPLOITING THEM.”

— UNITED NATIONS

HUMAN TRAFFICKING HAPPENS IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco is one of the top destinations in California for human trafficking because of its ports and airports, rising immigrant population, and large industries that attract forced labor. Trafficking victims work in all labor sectors, including manual labor, sex labor, and domestic labor. Victims may come from other counties, or they may be citizens of the United States. With your help, we can end this slavery once and for all.

YOU CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE

DO YOU SUSPECT TRAFFICKING HAS OCCURRED?

WHAT TO LOOK FOR

A person who has been trafficked may:

- Show signs that their movement is controlled
- Have false identity or travel documents
- Not know their home or work address
- Have no access to their earnings
- Be unable to negotiate working conditions
- Work excessively long hours over long periods
- Have limited or no social interaction
- Think that they are bonded by debt
- Have limited contact with their families or with people outside of their immediate environment

Call the Police

The San Francisco Police Department's Vice Unit investigates cases of trafficking, but they need the assistance of City residents in alerting them to potential cases. Contact the Vice Unit: (415) 553-1651

Call a Service Provider

There are several service providers in San Francisco with expertise in serving survivors of trafficking. For a detailed listing, see the Directory of Services for Survivors of Human Trafficking on the SFCaHT website:

THE WORK WE DO

The Collaborative envisions a local and global community that fully comprehends the value of each human life and abhors any practice that denies a person her or his right to live a life free from violence and exploitation.

To ensure this vision becomes a reality for San Francisco and beyond, the Collaborative engages in public awareness activities, legislative monitoring, local data collection, and other activities that strengthen San Francisco's network of service providers and law enforcement agencies.

HISTORY

The Collaborative launched in January 2010 with a membership of over 20 agencies representing a broad array of nongovernmental organizations, government agencies, law enforcement agencies, service providers, educators, and community members.
